This training is for anyone interested in learning how to record a butterfly transect with the view to monitor numbers at Woolbeding.

Butterfly transects are typically 1-2km in length and are walked weekly during a 26-week period between 1st April and 29th September each year.

Data recorded are submitted to UKBMS – The UK Butterfly Monitoring Scheme. The day will be run by volunteers from Butterfly Conservation Sussex in conjunction with the National Trust and will include a classroom-based introduction on how to record a transect, how to set up a transect and how to identify butterflies, followed by an opportunity to practice recording techniques in the beautiful surroundings of Woolbeding.
